VEGF – physiology and pathophysiology – blood pressure homeostasis and kidney function

Odense University Hospital/University of Southern Denmark
Venue: Auditorium, J. B. Winsløvsvej 25, University of Southern Denmark Odense C.
NB not Campus area, but close to OUH.

Wednesday march 2nd 2016, 15.00 - 18.00

Program

- 15.00 VEGF inhibitors and mechanisms of hypertension
Anton van den Meiracker, MD PhD, Department of Internal Medicine, Erasmus Medical Center, University of Rotterdam
- 15.30 Endogenous VEGF inhibitors in obstetrics and kidney function – diagnosis and clinical decision-making in preeclampsia
Kate Bramham, MD PhD, Department of Renal Medicine, Division of Transplantation Immunology and Mucosal Biology, King's College London
- 16.00 -16.35 Coffee break
- 16.35 Clinical Pharmacology of VEGF inhibitors
Lars Bastholt, MD, consultant, Dept. of Oncology, Odense University Hospital/University of Southern Denmark
- Ongoing studies
- 16.55 Does preeclampsia and increased soluble VEGF receptor concentrations protect against cancer?
Lars P. Nielsen, Prof. Health Sciences, Aalborg University, Senior Consultant, Dept. for Autoimmunology and Biomarkers, Statens Serum Institut,
- 17.10 Which biomarkers predict overall survival in response to VEGF-receptor blockers in renal cancer? Anne Vest Sørensen MD PhD, Herlev Hospital
- 17.25 Use of soluble VEGF receptor sFlt and placental growth factor PlGF as diagnostic and prognostic tools in preeclampsia. Louise B. Andersen, MD PhD, Hvidovre Hospital
- 17.40 Effect of VEGF tyrosine kinase inhibitors on blood pressure and renal NO formation
Kirsten Madsen, MD PhD, Dept of Clinical Pathology and Dept. of Cardiovascular and Renal Research, University of Southern Denmark
- 17.55 Deletion of VEGF in renal tubules leads to increased EPO and elevated hematocrit
Henrik Dimke, MSc PhD, Assistant Professor, Dept. of Cardiovascular and Renal Research, University of Southern Denmark
- 18.10 End of meeting
